Dan focuses his practice on helping clients navigate the minefield that is the health care industry. He assists clients with complex regulatory issues, structural and compliance concerns, HIPAA issues, government investigations, contracting, and when all else fails, litigation. Dan also tackles intellectual property transactions and litigation for clients in all types of businesses who are looking to proactively protect their interests or who have to defend them.

Dan also specializes in litigation technology, including e-discovery and electronic resource coordination.

Dan served as an Assistant United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, where he primarily prosecuted civil health care fraud. During his tenure, he also assisted US Attorneys' Offices nationwide with updating their e-discovery platforms, policies, and practices to ensure that the offices' constitutional and civil discovery obligations would be more systematically and consistently met.

Dan is a 2011 graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Law, and had the honor to serve as a law clerk for United States District Court Chief Judge Jennifer B. Coffman of the Eastern and Western Districts of Kentucky until 2013. Before law school, Dan designed and developed websites in central Kentucky.
